WHAT

The International Labor Organization (ILO) launched the Global Campaign for Decent Work in 2007 and, subsequently, the trade union movement established the World Day for Decent Work in 2008.

03

IFCA

From 2023 we are celebrating this day. It is a serious problem.

We talk about decent work and its challenges. Work can eradicate poverty if it is decent work and we Christians have to commit ourselves to this reality .

05

GOALS

1. To prepare for the meeting on 7.10: one country from each continent will be invited to answer two questions: What is the reality of decent work on our continents? What needs to be changed for this work to be a decent job?
2. Before and after: raise awareness of the topic, gather experiences, learn about the magisterium

WHY

To raise awareness about fundamental rights and sustainable employment to ensure that all men and women have access to productive work, in conditions of freedom, equality, security and human dignity. Indeed, only decent work can give a human face to employment and provide stability to the individual and his or her social network.

04

HOW

An invitation to be spread through the continental, national, diocesan level, involving in particular workers' movements, through associative contacts and social media to promote the day and encourage participation in the celebration of the day open to all, conscious of the importance of decent work.
